

Shoppyp

James, Yolanda, Hao

Fewer choices, better products.

Problem / Solution Overview

- Problem of Conventional Shopping:
- Time (Transportation, Choosing Products)
- Solution: Virtual Shopping Assistant to eliminate Problems

Tasks

- Routine Items list - List of items a user usually buys
- Recommendations - A list of new potential items for each user
- Reminders - Notifications sent out when a user may be running out of an item

The comic is divided into 12 panels arranged in two rows of six. The first row shows the initial state and the first two modifications. The second row shows the final state and the realization of the mistake.

- Panel 1 (Top Left): A stick figure stands next to a simple refrigerator. Annotation: "I thought I was a genius".
- Panel 2 (Top Second): The stick figure is at a desk, looking at a blueprint labeled "Diagram of a refrigerator".
- Panel 3 (Top Third): The stick figure is at a desk, looking at a blueprint labeled "Diagram of a refrigerator".
- Panel 4 (Top Fourth): The stick figure is at a desk, looking at a blueprint labeled "Diagram of a refrigerator".
- Panel 5 (Top Fifth): The stick figure is at a desk, looking at a blueprint labeled "Diagram of a refrigerator".
- Panel 6 (Top Sixth): The stick figure is at a desk, looking at a blueprint labeled "Diagram of a refrigerator".
- Panel 7 (Bottom Left): The stick figure stands next to a refrigerator with a light bulb on top. Annotation: "I figured it out".
- Panel 8 (Bottom Second): A close-up of the refrigerator's control panel, showing a digital display and several buttons.
- Panel 9 (Bottom Third): A close-up of the refrigerator's control panel, showing a digital display and several buttons.
- Panel 10 (Bottom Fourth): A close-up of the refrigerator's control panel, showing a digital display and several buttons.
- Panel 11 (Bottom Fifth): A close-up of the refrigerator's control panel, showing a digital display and several buttons.
- Panel 12 (Bottom Sixth): A close-up of the refrigerator's control panel, showing a digital display and several buttons.

[illegible]